CCTV spots crow behind 5-hr blackout in 2 Goa dists

Dead crow led to four to five hour power outages in parts of South Goa

Panaji: A crow that flew into high-tension power lines at the Xeldem substation caused a five-hour power outage that affected several parts of Salcete and the entire Kushavati district, in Goa, on Wednesday morning.

The bird came into contact with a busbar at the substation, that led to the tripping of three transformers. The incident disrupted power supply to Margao, Fatorda, parts of Sanguem and Quepem and other areas. Power department officials initially could not determine the cause. They later examined CCTV footage and found that a crow had flown into the busbar moments before the outage.

Superintending engineer (South) Rajiv Samant said crow had triggered the tripping of all three transformers. Officials were unable to provide an alternative power supply from Verna substation as a 33kV cable near a petrol pump had been damaged by a national highway contractor. TNN

Tiger suffers fatal injury, dragged 50m after train hit

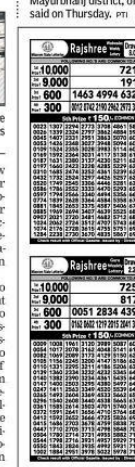

Ram.Sundaram
@timesofindia.com

Madurai: A tiger died after it was hit by the Palakkad-Thoothukudi Palaruvi Express near Sengottai on Wednesday. A preliminary postmortem revealed that it was struck from the side and dragged about 50m along the tracks. The animal suffered a severe skull injury that caused fatal brain damage, while the rest of its body had minor scratches, forest department sources told TOI.

Inquiries indicated that the tiger emerged from a mango grove adjoining a farmland and a residential area and was attempting to cross the tracks when the train hit it. The site is about one kilometre outside the forest boundary, in an area known to support tigers. Forest Officials said wildlife movement beyond the forest was difficult to predict.

Officials said it had not appeared in any of the camera-trap records examined so far. Railway personnel alerted the authorities after collision.

Man arrested after animal body parts found in home in Odisha Baripada (Odisha): A man was arrested after the forest department recovered wild animal body parts, including elephant tusks and deer antlers, from his house in Mayurbhanj district, officials said on Thursday. PTI
